Industrial Complex has everything we've become accustomed to from Edgar: the expansive sonics, the variety of sounds, and even the sly and sophisticated sense of humor he offers to the crowd that makes him stand out from other artists. When we look up the adjectives, we've got all the typical suspects: cranky or squelchy, loud, and the boom... The musical side is a bit more challenging to define, but it is a whirlwind! It's like every item is a collection of rhythms stored within its atoms of it, and Edgar's goal for his life is to dig these out. And he certainly does so, and with a very positive and calm manner. Perhaps it's funny at times because he does it with a smile that makes it look simple! And so, you need this if you produce industrial, electronic/experimental music, global pop, hip-hop, sound design, and... do we forget something? Ah yes, it's Foley!
