The galaxy explodes into sparks, space particles, flares, and dust -- a vision you'll never see in the course of a million years. It's true, we've captured the dream by using a photo effect to allow you to see a tiny dispersion cloud based on the photos.

Space is infinite and not explored fully which astonishes us to the very core. What's been explained and described is awe-inspiring in terms of patterns, colors, and flashes, all arranged in the incredible collection. Are you willing to manage the force of such an intense flux of power? Then the photo effect you're viewing is just waiting to be tested out!

How does it work?
