Corner Bowl Server Manager a Website Monitor software tool that minimizes downtime by proactively notifying IT professionals when degraded server and application performance is detected. Monitors website availability, responsiveness, HTTP error codes, domain expiration dates, SSL certificate validity, and expiration dates and includes complex content monitoring filters.

Corner Bowl Server Manager is not an application destined for all users. As the name suggests, this program was created to manage networks and servers without hassle. Of course, the user must know the basis on which servers and networks run to operate efficiently with this program's help. This program is a powerhouse for servers, offering a suite of tools for any possible issue you could encounter.

Since we're dealing with a tool, you wouldn't normally expect much attention to the program's interface. On the contrary, one would expect a very functional style. This is not the case with Corner Bowl Server Manager, although it doesn't overdo things. The application is well organized, and all the options ad features are neatly placed in their respective category. The interface is simple and modern.

Users can keep an eye on various features of their network and server units. From general information to hosts, specialized reports, and various types of logs, this program can offer the assistance any network creator needs to keep the maintenance times of these elements to a minimum. The program can also show the number of resources currently in use, a great feature if you're trying to establish if your hardware is working as expected.

This program seems to want to ensure you do not require any extra tools to run a server. The diagnostics reports are complete, although kept simple and informative. Errors are also grouped within a specialized tab that will sort them according to their importance. You can keep an eye on error discovery in real-time, giving you the opportunity of fixing them quickly.

The bottom line with this program is that although it might not be attractive to the general user, it's a gold mine for those that understand its meaning in terms of server and network functionality importance.
