NCover Desktop is also a vital tool in helping programmers find where they could boost their evaluations, and their code, as early in the development cycle as possible. Successful tests are crucial for delivering high excellent code, decreasing risks and maintenance costs, and increasing client satisfaction. NCover is the very first step in making sure that your code is completely analyzed. Grab code issues at the individual level before they get group, job, or client issues.

NCover Desktop also has an integrated Visual Studio Extension which offers easy code protection within your current workflow. The Visual Studio extension supplies NCover Desktop users using each of the tools programmers will need to write well-tested, bug-free code within the Visual Studio IDE. The Visual Studio expansion offers branch protection visualization, source code highlighting, and policy data from a developer-centric code policy perspective. The Visual Studio Extension is built to accumulate coverage on analyzing conducting the MSTest and NUnit test frame. Evaluation results recorded from the Visual Studio Extension may be connected to a job in NCover Desktop. Linking test results in NCover Desktop provides access to whole trend analysis tools and HTML reporting capacities.

Branch policy visualization permits you to observe how your code advances in real-time and also to take actions to simplify and optimize your code. Code highlighting defines individual lines of code that have never been tested so that you can concentrate your efforts. Also, your Desktop permits you to fortify regular source code analytics using innovative metrics such as Cyclomatic Complexity and Change Risk Anti-Patterns to attain a real, quantifiable comprehension of your code's total wellness. These are only a couple of those ways Desktop will permanently alter the way you view your .NET code.
