

Devart dbExpress driver for Oracle v7.2.1 (09 Jun 2020) for D10.4 Sydney

2024-12-18 23:02:30

db Express is basically a database independent coating that has the ability to define a very frequent interface in order to provide a rapid access to the Oracle right from the C++ Builder as well as the Delphi just like the Community Edition which is on the Windows as well as the micro s and has the capability to support a 32-bit as well as the 64-bit for the users and finally the Linux platforms. Along with the particular server it has the capability to provide a motorist as well as an independent library that can implement the frequent db Express for the processing queries as well as the stored procedures. The data access coating process is considered to be very thin and simple and it should be noted that dB Express has the capability to offer a very high performance database as well as a connectivity and it is very easy for the users and developers in order to deploy it. The user has the ability to use the driver in a precise manner and the same way as it is provided by the Embarcadero. The driver of the DbExpress for Oracle has the ability to supply a very energy at high speed access to the database server of the oracle and you can also Supply chance of connection along with the Oracle through the native data of the Oracle accessibility as well as the direct accessibility without any Oracle client. The db Express is based on the driver and it is simple to be deployed and it does not require the installation of different data suppliers as well as layers to be installed by the user on the system, such as BDE as well as ODBC. The user has the ability to work quicker and easier according to the standard data connectivity solution of Delphi which has been provided. To be concluded the driver of the DbExpress is capable of providing an extra chance in order to utilize the oracle directly without requiring the client. It is considered to be a cross-platform option available for the creation of the software utilizing a variety of the IDE which permits the user and developer in order to develop visually a very stunning as well as a high performance application, that are native in nature just like the windows as well as Mac OS.

Devart dbExpress driver for Oracle Great Features:

It has the following features and attributes that are stated as below such as:

- It permits the user and developer in order to work with the Oracle directly with the help of the TCP without even having to involve the client of the Oracle.
- It facilitates the deployment process as well as the configuration of the user application easily.
- The product is capable of supporting the server of the Oracle which includes the Oracle Express Edition for its users on developers.
- The driver for Oracle does not limit the choice of the user of the deployment platform.
- The product is considered to be very compatible with the latest versions of the IDE as well as the editions which includes the Community Edition as well as the Embarcadero RAD Studio.

所有软件资源

100%安全

已检测 无病毒 无篡改

去预览

标签

- Components
- VCL
- Delphi