The JSON message encoding empowers any WCF server or client to communicate with LiteJM with any other WCF or PowerWebSockets server or client, utilizing LiteJM.

The HTTP content negotiation binding component allows you to support multiple message encodings and compression approaches on precisely the same endpoint for serving different customers.

The message compression binding component supports the compression of request and response messages within some other transportation and configurable compression threshold and level.

The transportation compression stream update provides super quick, stateful, transport-level compression for improved performance of their NetTcp transfer even with transportation security.

The streamlined envelope behavior is excellent for enhancing compactness and hastening encryption if using message protection or whenever the configuration can't be changed.
