The human race has been telling tales for a long time. From cave drawings from prehistoric times to contemporary commercial campaigns, comic-film series, games, or interactive e-learning - stories are used to communicate information, build feelings of community and shared vision, teach and train groups and individuals to increase awareness, entertain, and inspire behavior change.

And the most captivating stories are told using solid visuals. Storyboards allow you to condense powerful messages into captivating formats that people can relate to and discuss and want to revisit again and repeatedly. Storyboards are extremely helpful for product managers, instructors, learning designers, trainers, marketing professionals, and many other positions. However, in reality, nearly everyone could and should use them, including Social media influencers and managers, consultants, human-resource professionals, parents, teachers, doctors and nurses, non-profit volunteers, and so on...

In the past, creating captivating storyboards, you or your team took many professional skills, many hours, and specific software and hardware or a large budget. The situation has changed drastically. With the aid of Generative Artificial Intelligence tools, anyone can be an author of storyboards.

In this class, I'll demonstrate how you can use ChatGPT and MidJourney as perfect stories or storyboarding partners. We will first be open to the possibilities and applications using storyboarding lets us create. We'll set up quickly using the tools and then get into. ChatGPT will be our partner in writing stories describing the characters, their actions, and visual descriptions. MidJourney serves as our creative execution tool. It will aid us in making the stories come alive with well-crafted sketches, photorealistic scenes, mock-ups, and travels.

After you've completed this training, you'll be able to develop fresh stories as well as storyboards in a matter of just a few minutes. It doesn't require specialized abilities or years of mastered advanced software. You need your imagination!

Don't waste time waiting. Do it now - learn the art of Storyboarding using ChatGPT along with MidJourney.
