Karl Taylor Photography – Golf Clubs Product Photoshoot: Embarking on a golf club product photoshoot presents its own challenges, especially when dealing with reflective surfaces and intricate shapes. Join us in this instalment of our sports equipment photography series, where we delve into the art of capturing mixed-surface texture products with complex contours.

Karl demonstrates how to overcome these hurdles throughout the shoot as he meticulously photographs a trio of golf clubs. Witness his process as he fine-tunes composition, illuminates the metallic surfaces, employs reflectors and flags to manipulate lighting, and utilizes focus stacking to conquer depth of field limitations.

Class Objectives:

- Mastering the photography of reflective products
- Techniques for capturing multiple products in a single frame
- Harnessing reflectors for supplementary lighting
- Employing gradient lighting for optimal product presentation
- Implementing focus stacking for enhanced depth of field
