Youngzsoft launched its operation in 2000, focusing on offering easy-to-use proxy solutions with CCProxy as their main offering. The developers created CCProxy as a basic Internet-sharing device in 2000. Still, it has since developed into a full proxy server system equipped with web proxy functionality, SOCKS proxy service, and mail proxy capabilities. This system provides sophisticated access controls through bandwidth modifications, website restrictions, and time scheduling features, which make it suitable for entire household network administration and business and educational facility control.

The special attribute of stems from its elegant and uncomplicated setup and lightweight design. The installation and usage process for CCProxy remains simple due to its minimal requirement of complex configuration protocols compared to other proxy software. Its basic design allows the software to deliver powerful enterprise-class Internet management functionality, making it the top network-wide choice for Internet access management among thousands of users worldwide. CCProxy functions without problems across all Windows operating systems, starting from Windows 7 through Vista and XP, including 2003 and 2008 and their newer releases.

In addition to CCProxy, Youngzsoft creates two more useful programs through their development division: AAMail email server software and CCBoot PXE boot server software. The company aims to enhance Internet management accessibility through sensible software solutions which guarantee both reliability and user simplicity.

Key Features of CCProxy：
