A Guide to Digitally Illustrating Your Favorite City: The art of drawing a cityscape is much more straightforward than you'd believe! I can begin immediately with any digital drawing device by following my easy method. Armed with a pencil from Apple and the Procreate application, I'll show you how to draw endlessly captivating cityscapes, locate thumbnails of colors, design color palettes, and shortcuts that grant anyone the ability. "I just don't know what to draw" will be gone forever.

Who do you think this class is for?

This beginner-level course is suited to a wide range of individuals. We'll use Google Earth to find compositions you'll trace. Therefore knowledge of perspective drawing isn't required. We'll use the essential Procreate tools found in various drawing software, so you can follow along using whatever application you are most comfortable with.

What is the reason this class beneficial?

The course is based on fundamentals in composition and color lighting and the process of digital art. This course is highly applicable when you continue to develop your abilities, regardless of whether you're drawing in this style. Is it possible to carry on this drawing in my next class about the animation of your urban landscape?

Materials/Resources:

- I'll use Procreate. However, any other digital drawing software can be used.
- I will supply the .abr formatted file (for brushes), which users can save and add to your drawing software. We will be using two brushes.
- All the images I'm using for this cityscape.
